

Many Americans view Vietnam with heavy hearts

By JULES LOH
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The guns are silent and few are sorry for that.

But to a nation accustomed to celebrating peace with ticker tape, the war in Vietnam ended, in the minds of many Americans, only in disillusionment, frustration, anger, confusion.

"A senseless tragedy," said Constance Gordon, a Chicago librarian, interviewed after church services. "More than 55,000 killed and hundreds of thousands wounded — what do you say to that? Senseless tragedy is the only way to put it."

"I breathed a sigh of relief when it was finally over," said Richard Scott, a 33-year-old telephone company executive from Omaha. "But it was a sad sigh. Even with the kind of effort we gave, it was all really to no avail."

Those were the fundamental feelings of scores of their countrymen questioned at random by The Associated Press at their jobs and homes and churches in cities and towns and villages across the land.

Some, utterly drained by the 12-year Indochina experience, were too benumbed even to follow closely the daily accounts of the fall of Saigon; a Vietnam veteran in Philadelphia, preoccupied with his own problem of unemployment, was not aware a day later that the war had ended.

Others, as if reflecting the promise of spring after winter's rains and ruins, preferred to look not behind but ahead with hope.

"It is time that as a country we begin anew, that our centennial and the end of our involvement in Southeast Asia may offer us an opportunity to recapture the ideals upon which our country was founded ...," said The Rev. William Pegg in a Sunday sermon at the Ontario Street Methodist Church in Buffalo, N.Y.

Edgar Crossman, a New York stockbroker, had been a staunch supporter of that involvement. "But I'm past feeling defeated," he said. "I would rather look to the future."

The underlying national mood — dejection tempered by optimism — had, however, a number of shadings.

To those whom the war touched personally the end was especially cruel. Mrs. Howard Donald of Tamaqua, Pa., lost a son. He was 19. "He thought he was doing the right thing and was there for the right purpose," she said. "Now it's all gone down the drain and it hurts. What did he die for?"

Joe Funn, a Wheeling, W.Va., banker, also lost a son, but his frustration was of a different sort.

U.S. will withdraw forces in Thailand

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The United States will remove more than one-quarter of its troops stationed in Thailand in the next two months, taking its first major step toward total withdrawal from its last military foothold in Southeast Asia, it was announced today.

The announcement, made jointly by the Thai and U.S. governments, said the authorized troop strength of 27,000 would be cut 28 per cent to 19,500. The announcement did not say how many of the 350 U.S. military planes remaining from the armada that bombed Cambodia and North and South Vietnam will be allowed to remain.

However, Thai Foreign Minister Chatichai Choonhavan said for the time being his country will hold on to 130 South Vietnamese Air Force planes that were flown there by refugees. They are claimed by both the new Saigon regime and the United States, which gave them to the former Saigon government.

He said there has been no contact so far between U.S. officials and the Thai government about the planes and the next step is to hold talks. Chatichai also said his government is ready to open diplomatic relations with North Vietnam.

Saigon radio, monitored in Bangkok, today carried the first word of release of persons imprisoned by the old South Vietnamese regime. It broadcast an invitation by the new regime for newly freed political prisoners and their families to meet at a pagoda and help plan a welcome home ceremony for people returning from Con Son prison island.

Communist broadcasts in the past have claimed the Nguyen Van Thieu government held tens of thousands of political prisoners, but the Thieu government claimed it held only criminals and Communists.

The East German Communist party newspaper Neues Deutschland reported from Saigon that thousands of officers and men of the former South Vietnamese navy turned over their ships and equipment Thursday and Friday.

Neues Deutschland also said the Saigon airfield at Tan Son Nhut was reopened Friday. It said the harbor at Da Nang was reopened April 24 and that foreign freighters could dock there after completing necessary forms provided by Revolutionary Government missions abroad.

The joint U.S.-Thai announcement on troop removal spoke of total withdrawal by year's end. But the Thai foreign minister said realistically he hoped this could be accomplished before next March.

"Of course it depends on whether the United States can accommodate all of them in mainland U.S.A. by then," he said, adding that after the fall of Cambodia and Saigon, the United States "might not have any more role or interests in Southeast Asia."

The 25,000 U.S. servicemen now in Thailand, mostly air force men, represent half the number during the peak in 1968-69 and are concentrated on four upcountry bases.

The fall of the South Vietnamese government last week prompted some left and center Thai parliamentarians to demand that the government "drive out the Americans as soon as possible." The United States has no status of forces agreement with Thailand, its oldest Asian ally, and based its presence on old agreements between former administrations.

From New Zealand to Sedalia

Six members of a Rotary International group study exchange program team, all from New Zealand, landed at the Sedalia Airport late Monday morning by helicopter. They had flown in from Jefferson City. From

New Zealanders visit

Gordon Black, an accountant from Hastings, New Zealand, has been to Hawaii, Las Vegas, San Francisco and the Grand Canyon in the last few weeks. But he says he already knows he is going to like Sedalia and the Midwest "just about the best of all."

Black and five fellow countrymen arrived in Sedalia Monday morning by helicopter. They will be staying with local families the next several days under a group study exchange program sponsored by Rotary International.

Asked why he preferred the small-town flavor of Sedalia to the sophistication of San Francisco, Black, leader of the exchange team, said: "I have an affinity of interest with small-town people ... They seem to be friendlier and know how to really live better. New Zealand is a country of smaller towns without any really big cities. Therefore, we have more in common with areas such as Sedalia."

Before heading north to Sedalia, the men spent a few days in the Ozarks and also visited Silver Dollar City. "The dogwood was in blossom and it was simply marvelous," remarked Black.

The five men accompanying Black across America are Colin Croudis, a secondary education teacher from Te Awamutu; John Milne, an agricultural scientist from Hamilton; William Mouat, a sheep and cattle farmer from Hawke's Bay; John Rennie, an accountant from Tokoroa; and Stuart Willis, a local government executive from Whakatane.

While in Sedalia, the men will be studying national defense and municipal services. They will confer with local National Guard officers and will also visit Whiteman Air Force Base. Regarding municipal services, they plan to visit with Mayor Jerry Jones and tour the Municipal Building.

The men will be staying with Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. Jess Walthall, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Harlan, Dr. and Mrs. William Monsees, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Latimer, and Mr. and Mrs. Dick Lehmer.

The contingent from New Zealand is the third group of foreign citizens to visit Sedalia under the Rotary program. A group from Australia came four years ago and were followed two years later by a group of Englishmen.

Trainers use love on animals

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — A Des Moines Zoo attendant slipped on the ice and his arm went through the bars of a tiger cage.

The cat pounced and the man shouted the command: "No bite." The tiger let loose.

Another time, a cargo attendant opened a hatch on a commercial airplane at the Des Moines airport and found himself facing another zoo inhabitant, an uncaged jaguar which had been on television in Chicago.

The attendant slammed the hatch and summoned zoo director Bob Elgin.

"I went in there after her and she was just delighted to see me," Elgin says.

Elgin put a leash on the jaguar, then "walked her into the administration building where she settled down in a comfortable corner to wait for the zoo's station wagon."

Those two instances of no injury were accomplished through what Elgin calls "affection training" — love and patience rather than whip and pistol.

"We're the only zoo in the country that affection trains all of its animals," he says. This includes birds of prey, predatory animals and the big cat family.

The animals can be affection trained, Elgin says, "because we're not a large zoo. We can give the animals the individual attention they need. Our basic philosophy is that animals are human, too."

"The cats are not declawed, and they have all their essential dental equipment," says Elgin, 54.

"Affection training takes a great deal longer than hand-raising them. It takes some insights into animal behavior. For example, the cats are taught not to bite hard, so they aren't frustrated if they aren't allowed to bite at all. They are taught never to use their claws aggressively."

"To get an utterly trustworthy cat takes six or seven months of intensive training. We take them into the home and they are part of the family, but this is done under carefully controlled conditions."

Elgin says affection rewards the animals. "They eat more, grow bigger, they're healthier and easier to treat medically. They're more at ease in mating and giving birth, and they're utterly relaxed when close to humans."

Foreign auto sales increase

DETROIT (AP) — Six foreign auto makers reported record high April sales today while domestic auto industry analysts were predicting that their sales figures would be sharply down from March levels.

Both foreign and U.S. auto makers report their April sales today, and both expected to report sales fell below March levels with domestic deliveries showing a much sharper decline than imports.

That would be yet another disappointment for the U.S. car companies. Last month's domestic sales were expected to be off 1 to 2 per cent from weak March figures and 27 per cent from the already poor showing of April 1974, when the energy crisis depressed sales.

The predicted domestic showing would be a minor setback for industry executives who have predicted sales would rebound this spring. In fact, the sales rate seems to be falling.

Domestic sales normally increase 4 per cent over March levels.

Domestic deliveries are estimated at 515,000 for April. If those estimates are correct, last month would be the worst April for the nation's No. 1 industry in 14 years.

Imports, most with a fuel economy advantage over domestic models, were expected to do significantly better. However, analysts said foreign sales still would be down slightly from March levels.

Analysts predicted import sales would hit 135,000 in the month, up 20 per cent from the poor April 1974 levels and off only 7 per cent from the strong March figures.

Analysts said import sales in April normally are the same as in March. They said sales would be up sharply from a year ago mainly because April 1974 foreign sales were unusually weak.

The import estimate would give foreign companies a record 21 per cent share of the total U.S. market for a fourth consecutive month. Imports have never held more than 16 per cent of the U.S. market for an entire year.

A strong import performance also would signal a setback for U.S. auto executives, who predicted last year that the foreign share of car sales would decline this model year.

With sales figures already in for 11 importers of 21 import makers, including two of the largest, all but one reported sales gains over April 1974, and half said deliveries were ahead of the strong March rate.

Volkswagen, the No. 1 importer, said its sales were up 21 per cent from poor year-ago levels and up 2 per cent from March. No. 3 Datsun said sales rose 47 per cent from April 1974, but were down 7 per cent from March.

Fiat was up 42 per cent from a year ago but down 18 per cent from March. Volvo was up 52 per cent from a year ago but down 18 per cent from March, and Honda was up 88 per cent from April 1974, but down 4 per cent from March.

The smaller imports reported gains over April 1974 ranging from 10 per cent to 132 per cent, and only minor declines from March. Porsche was the only company reporting a year-to-year sales decline, with deliveries down 39 per cent.

Lynn Townsend, chairman of financially troubled Chrysler Corp., said only last week: "Everyone keeps asking when the spring upturn will come. Spring-like weather was late in coming to Detroit this year, but it finally arrived. We feel the same way about car sales."

Burial will be in the Crown Hill Cemetery.

Howard Hillman

Hillman honored by Legion post

Howard Hillman, Route 1, commander of local American Legion Post 16, was presented Sunday with a Legion Gold Life membership card and cap patch.

Hillman also received a proclamation, endorsed by Mayor Jerry Jones and Pettis County Presiding Judge John Bluhm, describing his various services to the Post and the community since becoming Post 16 commander in September, 1972.

It was noted that Hillman has helped at the Post 16 booth at the Missouri State Fair and has participated in local veteran's day and memorial day observances. Hillman was also lauded for his efforts in securing the "eternal flame" veteran's memorial on the courthouse lawn.

It was pointed out at the surprise presentation ceremony that Hillman was the first commander in the 54 year history of Post 16 to be honored in such a manner while still in office. He was only the second Post 16 members to ever be voted a life legion member.

Vandalism suspected in power outages

Vandals apparently caused two power outages Sunday morning and afternoon that affected the city police station and downtown fire station, it was indicated Monday.

A total of some 700 persons in the northeast section of Sedalia were affected by the two black-outs. Power to the police station, following the Sunday morning black-out at 12:57 a.m. was restored immediately, by an alternate power source that was triggered by the loss of power. Power was restored at the fire station and to some 500 private customers within 12 minutes. Power for the remaining 200 customers was restored 35 minutes after the black-out.

The telephone system at the Fire Station was not affected by the black-out.

The second black-out, affecting the same 700 customers, occurred at 1:50 p.m. with power to all customers restored 20 minutes later. Again, the police station emergency power source was activated.

Walter Savio, Missouri Public Service district manager, said the early Sunday morning black-out occurred when a 12-KV switch was forced past a locking device located on a pole at the intersection of Saline and Mill Streets. Sunday afternoon, the same switch was again forced open after a wire applied as a temporary restraining device was removed. The switch was destroyed and the pole on which it was mounted was set on fire.

"A $1,000 reward is being offered by the MPS for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons involved in the alleged arson incident."

Lifting experience

It was at the World's Fair in New York in 1854 that the elevator industry got off the ground. An ingenious mechanic from Yonkers, Elisha Groves Otis, demonstrated a hoisting device at the Crystal Palace that had a safety catch to keep the platform from plummeting. Otis would raise himself to the ceiling and dramatically slash the rope as spectators gasped and paled. Then he would proclaim, "All safe, gentlemen. All safe!"

Ford seeks more for Viet refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Ford administration will ask for $507 million to transport and care for more than 125,000 Vietnamese refugees, the director of the President's refugee program said today.

At the same time, the director, L. Dean Brown, suggested refugees will be free to return to South Vietnam if they wish.

Brown told the House immigration subcommittee there are four categories of refugees, starting with 55,000 Vietnamese brought out under a special provision of U.S. immigration laws that would have accommodated up to 130,000.

"They will be accepted into the United States unless any wish to emigrate to third countries or return to their native land," Brown said.

He said the second category includes 69,000 Vietnamese picked up at sea by U.S. ships. "We propose to accept responsibility for them," Brown declared.

The third category involves about 3,000 Vietnamese and Cambodians who fled to other countries, many in U.S.-supplied ships and planes. The fourth category is an unknown number of diplomats around the world.

The U.S. planes and ships will be reclaimed, Dean said, and the Vietnamese and Cambodians who used them to flee will first be required to seek asylum in the countries they went to.

If refused asylum they will be asked to seek resettlement assistance from international organizations, Brown said; and if they can't get that, they will be considered for immigration to the United States on a case-by-case or class-by-class basis.

He said most diplomats will be able to settle abroad, and those who cannot get international organizations to take responsibility for them will be considered for entry into the United States.

Brown said 124,399 refugees had been accounted for by 5 a.m. EDT today, and that possibly another 10,000 are still on ships of other countries.

He said Canada has agreed to take at least 3,000 of the refugees, and that the United States is working with other countries who might accept others.

As Brown made his statement, congressional backers of aid to Indochinese refugees renewed their efforts for legislation omitting the controversial issue of whether Congress should give retroactive approval to the use of U.S. troops in the evacuation of Vietnam.

The House last week rejected a $327-million aid bill for the refugees, partly because the bill contained after-the-fact approval of U.S. troop use for Saigon's evacuation.

The House International Relations Committee may begin work this week on a new bill that deals only with money and omits the controversial troop-use authorization.

Similar activity on a new refugee relief bill also seems likely in the Senate. Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., said they will introduce a bill to provide whatever funds are needed to help Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees being resettled in this country.

Meanwhile, Congress is ready to take final action on a bill to protect the environment against strip-mining. The measure, similar to one President Ford vetoed last year, was coming before the Senate today.

The bill was hammered out by a House-Senate conference committee from differing versions passed by both chambers in March.

Transmission taken from car

A transmission was removed from a car belonging to Joseph D. Knight, 1005 East 13th, while parked on the lot across from Smith-Cotton High School at Ninth and Lamine Saturday night.

Knight told police that the car had broken down Saturday night at about 10:30 p.m. and when he returned to the car at 3:20 p.m. Sunday, the transmission had been removed. Value for the loss was set at $175.

In other police news, seven rugs, valued at $110, were stolen Saturday night while on a clothes-line in the backyard of Raymond Heinaman, 1701 South Summit.

Thieves burglarized a box car belonging to the Missouri Pacific Railroad Sunday afternoon while the car was on the tracks at Engineer. Six cases of beer were removed, valued at $40. Later in the afternoon, all but 17 bottles of the beer were found in an old refrigerator in an abandoned Pullman car near the box car.

County Court rules road closed

The road leading to the old Covered Bridge area was ruled closed to the public Monday morning by the Pettis County Court.

No opposition was voiced at the second reading of a petition received by the County Court in December. At that time 39 persons in the park area, south of Sedalia, requested that the road, formerly South Ingram and known as the Water Works Road, be closed and made into a private road.

The court heard the first reading of the petition on the first Monday in February.

The Sedalia Water Department voted in December to close the park due to complaints of area residents of illegal activities and vandalism in the park.

Herb Taylor, manager of the water department, told The Democrat-Capital that a gate will be placed at the department's north fence line on the road.

Cablevision franchise on council agenda

The City Council is expected to resume tonight its discussion of a proposed ordinance that would give Cablevision Inc. a 15-year franchise calling for a 3 per cent annual payment to the city.

The council will meet in regular session at 7:30 o'clock in the Municipal Building.

At a special session held last Monday, the council delayed a final decision on the Cablevision request. Also at the special meeting last Monday, the council reviewed an audit of Cablevision's financial records.

The council may also discuss further the possibility of authorizing a bond issue to finance a proposed industrial park in the city. At a special meeting Thursday night, the council met with city Economic Development Director John Huquembourg who outlined details of the proposal.

Smith arraigned on bad check charge

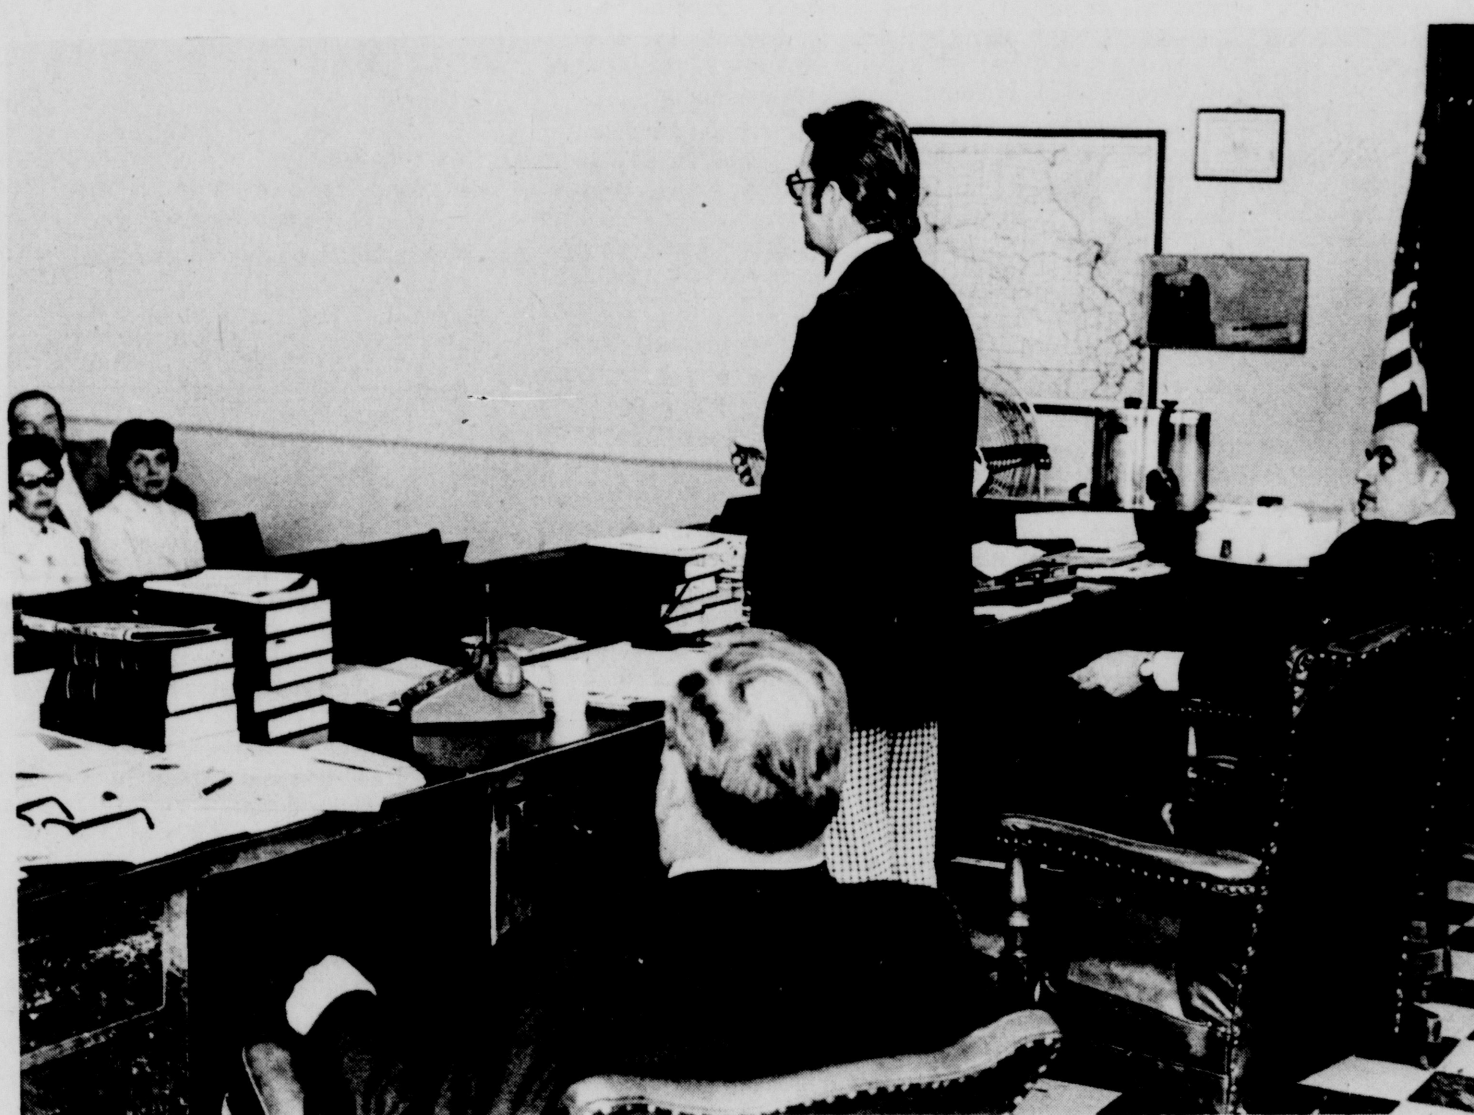

Charles E. Smith, 35, Route 4, was arraigned before Magistrate Judge Hazel Palmer Monday morning on charges of writing a bogus check, a felony.

Smith was arrested Friday by Pettis County sheriff's department officials after allegedly passing a bogus check April 29 at Connor-Wagoner, Inc., 414 South Ohio. The check was allegedly made out to Smith and drawn on Union Savings Bank in the name of Bill Brown.

A preliminary hearing for Smith was set for May 19th. He remains in the Pettis County jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Smith was sentenced to one year in the county jail Oct. 11, 1974, with credit given for time already spent in jail, after pleading guilty in Pettis County Circuit Court to a bogus check charge.

Smith was arrested on that charge in March of 1974 after he allegedly used the fictitious name of Bill R. Brown on March 27, 1974, when he issued a check for $25 to Kehde and Kehde Enterprises, Inc.

Answer questions

Three members of the State Tax Commission met with 22 officials from Pettis, Benton, Cooper and Morgan Counties to answer questions on the current move to get all Missouri counties tax bases to a standard of 33 and one-third per cent, an increase of 11 per cent from the 30 per cent formerly used by most counties to figure property and taxes. The commissioners must meet with officials from all 114 counties by July 1. Pictured are Don Williams, foreground; Jim Riney, chairman, standing; and Don Williams, seated at back. Riney said that about 80 per cent of Missouri's counties, including Pettis, are currently working towards adjusting their tax bases, in compliance with a law passed by the Missouri legislature in 1973.

Legislature to complete action on state budget

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Final action by the Missouri House in the state's $2.3 billion budget should be completed this week while the Senate plans to extend its working sessions to clear away a backlog of bills.

The House gave final approval to three budget measures last week, sending them to the Senate, and tentatively okayed four others. Work on the eighth budget bill funding legislative operations starting in July remains as well as final consideration of the other four.

A night session is scheduled today in the House to work on a number of measures correcting flaws in bills enacted in past sessions and to update other laws because of recent legislative changes.

Included in those proposals is a 272-page bill to bring the statutes into compliance with changes in the state's administrative structure as a result of reorganization.

One of the measures also repeals the bill passed last year that lowered the legal age from 21 to 18 for everything but buying and consuming alcoholic beverages. That law was declared unconstitutional by the state Supreme Court and a number of bills are pending this session to make that change in each individual law.

Consideration of no-fault insurance is high on the House schedule after debate on the budget pushed action on other measures back last week.

The Senate intends to extend its working sessions by about a day and a half for the next two weeks in an effort to reduce the 140 bills waiting to be considered.

'Aging' wife is a traveling tennis pro

By TIM WHITE
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — In a sport dominated by the young and the unattached, tennis great Margaret Court, a 32-year-old mother of two, is an anomaly.

The brown-haired and sinewy Australian recently returned to the women's pro tennis circuit after a one-year respite, during which she gave birth to a daughter, Marika Margaret.

After some 22 years in tennis, Mrs. Court must maintain an onerous training regime to remain spry. Her 5-foot-10½, 150-pound frame has lately been hindered by the approach of middle age and a pulled calf muscle that tends to knot. Still, she continues to log thousands of travel miles competing, quite successfully, in the world's major tournaments.

One wonders, in the face of all this activity, what it's like being the family of one of history's top tennis players.

"It's marvelous," says husband Barry Court.

"Fortunately, I love traveling, because we do a lot of it. Sure, there have been tough times. I don't like it when she gets hurt or loses, but I have no regrets."

Margaret Smith became Margaret Court in 1967 and promptly changed the leisure habits of her spouse, a wealthy businessman and the son of the premier of West Australia.

"I never played tennis before I met Margaret," Court confesses with a laugh. "I didn't even know how to score. My main interest was sailing, the conditions in my hometown of Perth being ideal for the sport. "But being on dry land so much, I needed another form of exercise. My wife taught me how to play."

Mrs. Court is equipped to instruct. Her 92.6 m.p.h. serve is the fastest in women's tennis.

Polly's pointers

Wool blanket needs softening

DEAR POLLY — I take pride in my yard and want to keep it looking nice. My Pet Peeve is with those people who throw their cigarette butts and empty soft drink cans on it. I do not smoke or drink so do not appreciate cleaning up after others who do. Today I even picked up a whiskey bottle. Polly, if you print this in your column and if those who do this have a conscience read this I hope it hurts. — DISGUSTED.

I am sure this is a Peeve shared by many. — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — I am a constant reader of the column and think there must have been a mistake about the ingredients for the cookies made with biscuit mix, pudding mix and water. I tried it twice. The first time the batter was very thin and runny and I tried baking the cookies but had to throw them out for the birds. The second time was the same but I added more of both dry ingredients and they baked a little better but I do not think they were right. I would like to know what went wrong. I like the idea of saving and also being quick. Thank you. — MRS. P.G.

DEAR MRS. P.G. — This cookie batter is VERY thin and if you carefully read the recipe it said to only drop a TEASPOON FULL at a time on the cookie sheet. They spread and then bake very quickly. I made them with chocolate pudding and the resulting soft cookies were almost like thin brownies. One of my neighbors made them with lemon pudding and the people who tasted them thought they were surprisingly good. If you object to the very thin batter, why not use less water? — POLLY.

DEAR POLLY — It is very handy to have a wooden popsicle stick in the flour bin and another in the sugar canister to have to use for leveling off a filled measuring cup. — MRS. J.S.

DEAR POLLY — The renewed interest in house plants and our smaller living quarters have caused many of us to hang plants in the windows. To make an attractive hanger use a plastic mesh onion bag. Fasten one end securely and thread sturdy cords from the bottom to make a suspension device. One can even hold a terrarium. The mesh cuts the light and other pots require another container to prevent dripping. Dress up the cords with big beads and fancy buttons from Grandma's button box. — ELIZABETH.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — The fibers in my all-wool blanket are a little stiff. It was washed in water that was too hot. Do you know of a remedy that will soften my blanket a bit? — MABEL.

DEAR MABEL — A good trick is to add a tablespoon of household ammonia to the final rinse water to make a blanket really fluffy and soft.

Do not let a wool blanket become completely dry before removing from the dryer or the line. The slight dampness will allow for stretching to shape. Then brush both sides with a stiff brush to fluff it up. If drying a blanket out doors on parallel lines take hold of the corners and shake it several times during the drying period. Never hang blanket out doors when the weather is too cold. This will stiffen the fibers. Also never put it in the hot sun. — POLLY (NEA)

League discusses tax reform

Realignment of Missouri's tax structure will be the focus of activity for the next two years of the League of Women Voters of Missouri. Mrs. Lynn Block, delegate to the League state convention, told the local League Board of Directors and officers recently.

James Spainhower, state treasurer, spoke at the convention held last week at Lindenwood College in St. Charles. "Like most of you, I see a need for tax reform in Missouri," he said, "but unlike some of you, I do not think the changes should be instant or limitless. I believe Missouri needs to examine two major areas: How and where we get our tax revenue, and how efficiently and wisely we spend the money collected."

The newly-elected state president, Mrs. Julian C. Hall, St. Louis, said, "The tax structure focus is a necessary first step if we are to fully accomplish League goals which include improved welfare payments, better funding for education and improvements in our juvenile justice system."

Ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment, a top League priority this year, soon will face its final vote in the Senate, delegates sent mailgrams to all 34 state senators urging their affirmative vote.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

American two dollar bills are as old as the nation. They were first authorized by the Continental Congress in June 1776 as "bills of credit for the defense of America." Some 49,000 two dollar bills were circulated, and ran into trouble. Inflation so plagued the colonies during the Revolutionary War that nobody wanted paper money of any denomination, and "not worth a Continental" became a catchphrase for paper money issued by the Continental Congress. The World Almanac notes.

WASHINGTON — What a humiliating way for two decades of U.S. involvement in Vietnam to end.

Rowan

With the new "leader" of the people for whom we sacrificed so much ordering us out within hours, and with the enemy we fought so long now occupying Saigon, we hustled our last citizens out in a panicky helicopter retreat.

It is inescapable that for a long time we shall ask ourselves and each other some painful questions about this military debacle and human tragedy.

Did the leaders of North Vietnam really sense something about our national character when they boasted a decade ago that the North Vietnamese were prepared to fight for 10 or 20 years, but that the American people would not have the stomach to sustain a long struggle?

What was it that kept the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese so highly motivated, even in the face of merciless bombings, when there was no comparable fervor on the part of South Vietnamese troops? Is it a simple matter of the Communist forces truly believing that they were liberators, throwing out the last of the foreigners, whereas the South Vietnamese troops always had a gut feeling that they were defenders of an old order in which outsiders and their wealthy, corrupt Vietnamese lackeys controlled everything?

We can abuse ourselves and each other for a generation and longer with such questions about the who and why of Vietnam. But the only meaningful question in the long run is: "What have we learned, if anything?"

World politics changed profoundly during the 20 years or so that we were thrashing around in Indochina.

As old colonial empires were dissolved, dozens of new nations entered the United Nations, wiping out a political dominance the U.S. once enjoyed there. Americans are faced with the question of whether to woo these often-exasperating "third world" countries or to adopt a posture of haughty disgust and say, "To hell with them and the United Nations."

Latin Americans, who a generation ago would be counted on to side with the United States in most any major international dispute, have become intensely independent and sometimes harshly critical of their giant neighbor.

With much of the world's vital raw materials (bauxite, rubber, petroleum, tin) no longer controlled directly by European colonial powers, the United States' economic well-being is far more dependent on her bilateral relations with new, small nations.

Consider Latin America alone. Our troubles there are serious, and they involve much more than Cuba's move to communism, Chile's drift first into Marxism, then rightwing dictatorship, or Peru's defection from the solidly pro-U.S. bloc.

Not just Latin leftists but even Latino oligarchs, dictators and autocrats are angry over the recent trade bill which they say adds more "Hickenlooper amendments" under which Latin American countries can be punished economically if they are naughty politically.

Rodolfo Silva, the new ambassador from Costa Rica, said to me recently: "There have been three periods of genuine hope in Latin America — when Roosevelt declared his 'good Neighbor Policy,' when Kennedy announced his 'Alliance for Progress' and when Kissinger proposed a 'New Dialogue.' The 'new dialogue' ended before it was begun."

Have we learned from Vietnam that tanks and bombers cannot save a situation once we let a whole nation, or even a continent, come to believe that we stand for unjust exploitation?

Are we now ready to turn some of our attention and resources toward those peoples on whom we have lavished mostly neglect and indifference in recent years?

The answers hold the key to this country's future position in a sharply-reordered and still-changing world.

Why we failed in Vietnam

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — We failed in Vietnam for a number of good reasons.

Cromley

We sent men who had no knowledge of government or of Asia to advise in the most sensitive areas of politics. We had high military officers counseling prime ministers on Vietnamese domestic civil policies and on the appointing and firing of cabinet officers.

We had eager civilians, with ideals but no experience in political matters, attempting to mold South Vietnam in their own image and collaborating in Watergate-type plots to achieve noble ends.

We made little attempt to understand Vietnamese society and customs. We knew and still know next to nothing about their religion and its political and power structure. We made no effort to learn their family system and its influence on government, the military and business.

We had no understanding of the very large Chinese community and the role it played. Or the relationship of the French to the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong.

We made no realistic search to determine those men and women with real influence in Vietnamese society. Rather we persistently showed a predilection for those who spoke English or French, those who adopted Western ways and those who professed to agree with us and our theories.

We were little concerned with building those supporting institutions which made it possible for a democracy to work, perhaps because the men we sent did not know their value.

We made no effort to understand that a shaky government is inevitably more concerned with the personal loyalty of its generals than with their ability — and therefore we devoted no time to solving this problem.

It need not be emphasized that these civil matters are even more important than military strength in a guerrilla war.

Our men responsible for managing U.S. AID and military supply and distribution systems and for devising financial and monetary practices had little understanding of currency and commodity manipulation. The programs they instituted insured that the Viet Cong tax collectors and their military quartermasters would secure the dollars and supplies they required in abundance. The French grew rich. And the ease with which both goods and funds could be diverted gave strength to the most corrupt elements in Vietnamese society.

For a time, we had a man in Vietnam watching for such hanky panky — using investigative skills he had learned in Europe in World War II. His findings were ignored and he was sent home.

Militarily, we had a surprisingly large number of able majors and captains in Vietnam, who learned from their Vietnamese associates and from the enemy's successes. These men, low in the chain of command, had little influence.

But we had, too, a surprisingly large number of generals and colonels caught up in politics and in a type of war they did not understand and refused to learn.

They had been indoctrinated through years in military schools which put heavy emphasis on the U.S. Civil War, on conventional World War I and II battles in France, Belgium, the Netherlands and North Africa. They had no taste for guerrilla war. Those in their ranks with experience in such matters were pigeonholed in backwater offices or sent to barracks duty in the States or Korea.

Our own troops fought the same type of war we taught the Vietnamese. Our air fleets chose their targets in much the same manner as in World War II. We sent billions in inappropriate equipment and made up for our mistakes by expending large amounts of bombs, artillery shells and ammunition. The South Vietnamese learned this saturation technique all too well.

This is why we failed in Vietnam. And this is why we may also fail in Southeast Asia.

Of fairs and whales

Since world's fairs are chancy business ventures at best, the fact that an international exhibition called 'EXPO '75 is scheduled to throw open its turnstiles next July on Okinawa (Okinawa?) is either a sign that good times are returning or else that things are worse than we thought, so why not try a fair? Maybe it'll play in the Ryukyus.

Be that as it may, this particular fair, which will run from July 20, 1975 to Jan. 18, 1976 and is expected to draw two million visitors, has been officially sanctioned by the Bureau of International Exhibitions in Paris as a "special fair" dealing with the oceans.

With the formal title of the International Ocean Exposition and the theme, "The Sea We Would Like To See," EXPO '75, says the Japan Trade Council, "will be a celebration of the largesse of the oceans that surround us as well as a sober examination of the problems threatening the well-being and productivity of the seas."

The irony will be immediately apparent to conservationists. Japan and the Soviet Union are the only two countries still engaged in the large-scale devastation of the world's diminishing whale population. The Japanese say they have to do it to feed their people. The Russians do it because — well, since they are not capitalists, they must have a good reason.

So far, no amount of international pressure, pleading or propaganda has convinced the two that the more whales that are "harvested" from fewer and smaller herds, the sooner will come the time when there are no more huntable herds, and maybe no whales at all, whether to eat or to admire or just to think about.

And that is the kind of sea no one should want to see. (NEA)

Merry-go-round

Ford backing off from earlier views

By JACK ANDERSON with Les Whitten

WASHINGTON — President Ford has been trying delicately to extricate his foot from his mouth ever since the Saigon surrender.

The sudden collapse of South Vietnam caught him with some bygone rhetoric stuck in his throat. He has been obliged to make some quick revisions, to wit:

✓ The President had persistently sounded the warning that the United States would lose credibility with its other allies if more military aid weren't rushed to Saigon. The new line, according to our White House sources, is that U. S. credibility is still high and that our allies can depend upon U. S. commitments.

✓ The President had preached that a Communist victory in Vietnam would cause its Asian neighbors to fall like dominoes. Now he is spreading the word that he doesn't believe the domino theory after all.

✓ Ford had implied that Congress was to blame for South Vietnam's military reverses for refusing to vote more aid. This line was eagerly adopted by Saigon leaders looking for a scapegoat for their own mishandling of the war. Now the President is trying to correct the impression that the United States was responsible for the fall of South Vietnam.

✓ Ford had called for an emergency appropriation of $700 million in military aid to save Saigon. At the same time, the Joint Chiefs of Staff urged that billions worth of military equipment should be hauled out of South Vietnam before it fell into Communist hands. It would have made the President look silly, however, to remove weapons while he was pushing for more military aid.

Therefore, U. S. Ambassador Graham Martin blocked U. S. forces from salvaging an enormous arsenal, which the Communists have now inherited. The irony is that the Communists now possess far more U. S. equipment than they ever received from their own Russian and Chinese allies. This contradicts still another Ford implication that Hanoi got more military assistance than did Saigon.

RED FACES: Duane Freer, a Federal Aviation Administration bigwig, presented a flight safety award the other day to the DuBois, Pa., flight station. Then, ceremoniously, he led an FAA delegation to a waiting government plane, took the controls and taxied the plane into a ravine.

An investigation of the accident has now determined that the distinguished safety official was flying the plane illegally and that his fellow regulators had neglected to buckle their seat belts.

At an earlier airport luncheon, Freer extravagantly praised the DuBois station for guiding a pilot safely through an overcast on a near empty tank.

The luncheon crowd, speeches about air safety still echoing in their ears, gathered to see the important visitors off.

Grandly, the FAA bigshots boarded their official DC3 and, as the crowd waved goodbye, the plane wobbled down the runway like a drunken duck and plunged into a ravine.

The crowd rushed to the ruined plane and began to crowbar out the distinguished visitors. Some were seriously injured, including Freer.

The National Transportation Safety Board is now investigating the accident. Their confidential, preliminary findings have left FAA headquarters gasping with incredulity.

The board has found that Freer, although rated to fly light aircraft, had no rating to fly a DC3. This is a violation of both FAA regulations and the law.

It also appears that he was only partially belted into his seat. Worse, some of the FAA regulators, who require all commercial passengers to fasten seat belts, didn't obey their own rules. This apparently caused many of the injuries.

Finally, the confidential findings indicate that the FAA hotshots were to blame for the crash.

Footnote: A board spokesman declined to comment except to say no final report is expected until summer. James E. Dow, the acting FAA administrator, promised "an even-handed approach" to the case. He told us the FAA would treat "infractions by FAA employees in the same manner as we treat infractions by others."

COLSON'S MANUSCRIPT: Charles Colson, the former White House tough guy who turned to Christianity, has completed 100,000 words of his book about Watergate.

He wrote much of the first draft by hand in prison. But now that he has been released, he dictates long passages to his wife, Patty.

Those who have seen his closely guarded manuscript say its message is that "a spiritual revival could well grow from Watergate."

Colson would tell us only that the book is about "what happens to a man when he accepts Christ in his life." His conversion, he says, helped him through the bleak prison months.

Colson hasn't yet selected a title for his book, although he has filled five pages of yellow pad paper with ideas for a name.

He refused to say how much his publisher, Charles Books, is paying him for the manuscript. We have learned, however, that he turned down higher offers from larger publishers, because he preferred to deal with a small, religious-oriented firm.

Footnote: On two occasions, Colson has interrupted his writing to testify in secret before the Rockefeller Commission, which is investigating the Central Intelligence Agency. Sources close to the commission say he reiterated views he had raised 18 months ago that the CIA was deeply implicated in domestic dirty tricks.

Termites
Termites have or will soon be making their annual spring appearance. Many times termites and ants are confused by the home owner. The flying termite is always black. The flying ant may be black, yellow, tan or almost red. The back wing of an ant is shorter than the front wings. The two pairs of wings on a termite are of equal size. The ant has a constricted or narrow waist just behind the wing bearing section of the body. The termite has no constriction in waistline. The antenna of termites is straight, those of the ants are elbowed.

Any time we talk about termites, home owners must be alert for suspected fraudulent termite control operators. Do not act on impulse or fear. Contact your Extension office for Guide Sheets on termite control and identification.

Pasture weeds
Buck brush and musk thistles can be controlled if sprayed immediately. Ironweeds in pastures should be sprayed near the end of May. Early spring is necessary to kill buck brush and musk thistles with 2, 4-D. Ironweeds in pastures can be controlled with two annual sprayings of 2lb-A of 2, 4-D ester.

Guide Sheets for musk thistle and ironweed control are available at the Extension office.

Air conditioning
Sizing Air Conditioning Equipment is the title of a new MU Guide. Single copies of this guide are available free from your Extension office.

Flea beetles
The small black, jumping flea beetle on the early corn is the corn flea beetle. It is a spreader or carrier of Stewart's disease, a bacterial wilt of corn. Practically all commercial varieties of field corn carry resistance to the disease.

Red flowers
Kalo Monsees tells me that the red flowers seen in the native prairie meadows this spring are Indian Paint Brush. It is a parasitic plant that grows on the roots of native prairie grass. The red tops are leaves and not flowers - the flowers are almost hidden. It grows across U. S. and Canada on prairie meadows below the Alpine elevation.

Additives
Additives to herbicides to be used post emergent on milo or on corn in many situations are not advisable. The use of these products may cause too rapid uptake of a normally safe herbicide by a crop.

Avoid the use of additives with Atrazine on grain sorghum. No additives should be added to 2, 4-D for use on either corn or grain sorghums.

Musk thistle
Musk thistle is a plant that is taking over pasture land. It came from Europe about 50 years ago. Literally covered with sharp spines, it grows from two to over six feet tall. Blooming will start in early June and continue until late August. Flowers are deep reddish pink. Seeds are air-borne and can be carried by wind for many miles. Musk thistle is generally classified as a biennial.

Chemical control is more effective when plants are growing most rapidly. Musk thistle is susceptible to 2, 4-D if used at the right time. Make spring applications before flower buds emerge and before stem elongates. Fall applications made in September or October to first-year rosettes are effective too. Use one pound of acid equivalent per acre.

Ironweed
Ironweed in pastures is one of the toughest weeds we have to contend with. It is a perennial, coming from the root year after year. It is hard to mow and is a prolific seed producer. It is controllable by chemical means however but timing of application is important for this to be successful.

2,4-D ester is among the most effective of the herbicides in controlling this weed. The best time of application is during the early stages of vegetable growth. Apply 2,4-D ester at the rate of one pound acid equivalent per acre when all the shoots have emerged.

If lespedeza and white clover are present in the area to be sprayed, the use of 2, 4-D ester can be used at an advantage. Time of application is the same, but lespedeza will tolerate 2, 4-DB ester up to 1 1/2 pounds per acre. Control results with this compound has been as effective as 2,4-D ester.

Grain on pasture
Don't overlook a combination of corn and grass as a way to cut down on the bushels of corn needed to feed out cattle.

Feeding cattle grain on pasture until they grade high-good or low-choice has been a way to substitute high-quality forage for grain in cattle finishing studies. Some advantages given for this system of finishing cattle are less grain, fewer waste and pollution problems, and less labor. The goal of feeding grain on pasture is to supplement but not completely replace pasture forage with grain. Most experiments show a need to limit grain intake to about one pound for each 100 pounds of body weight in order for cattle to make best use of grass pastures. Full-feeding grain to cattle on alfalfa-grass, however, has saved grain in comparison to drylot finishing.

The amount of grain required for a pound of grain for cattle fed on pasture in the Pennsylvania University study is shown in Table 1.

Beef outlook
Some important developments have occurred recently in the cattle-beef industry. Marketings decreased sharply in late March and early April. This caused cattle prices to climb about 20 per cent in three weeks. The quarterly USDA survey on April 1 showed that farmers planned to market about 25 per cent fewer grain-fed cattle during the second quarter of 1975 than a year ago. As a result, consumers may pay slightly higher prices for some cuts of beef. Even so, there will probably be a record amount of beef available during the remainder of this year.

Corn planting
We have a great deal of field research that indicates that we can expect to get our highest yields when corn is planted early in April. Reduction in expected yield can be based on research work that has been done on corn that shows an average reduction in yield of 0.4 bushels per acre for every day of delay in planting after April 20th and until May 20th. This research work also shows that we get an average reduction of 2.4 bushels per acre for every day of delay after June 1st.

Celebrating communion

The Rev. Jane Hwang, one of three women ordained as Episcopal priests in the Hong Kong diocese, celebrates communion Sunday at the Church of Epiphany in Washington. The Rev. Hwang conducted the service at the invitation of Washington Bishop William F.

Farm roundup

Cattle price rise to continue

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices of grain-fed cattle have gone up about 50 per cent from their depressed levels of last winter and livestock economists in the Agriculture Department say the upturn probably will continue for several more weeks.

"That doesn't mean we won't see some back and forth movement," George Hoffman of the department's Economic Research Service told a reporter. "But it looks now like these prices will peak out in late May or early June."

Last week some choice-grade steers sold in Omaha for more than $48 per 100 pounds, compared with a low of $30 to $32 per hundredweight in February and early March.

On a quarterly basis, Omaha choice steer prices in January-March averaged $35.72 per 100 pounds, the lowest in more than three years.

If the higher trend in fed cattle prices continues a while as USDA thinks, prices could exceed the 1974 peaks of around $49 per 100 pounds set briefly last summer before they declined precipitously through most of the fall and winter.

Hoffman said that if farmers and ranchers have ample forage supplies from pastures and ranges it looks now as if cattle prices will hold up fairly well through the remainder of this year despite anticipated declines from current levels.

But if feed supplies dry up, he said, that could force many more cattle to market prematurely and cause the market to break much more sharply than now expected.

Department experts do not foresee a quick buildup in feedlot cattle numbers, however. Inventories of grain-fed cattle have shrunk the past year or so because of high feed costs in relation to market prices.

As of April 1, for example, feedlot inventories in 23 major beef producing states totaled fewer than 8.5 million head, down 31 per cent from a year earlier and 37 per cent below April 1, 1973.

But so many cows and other cattle not fattened on grain have been marketed the past year that total beef production has been at record levels.

In 1974, according to a new USDA review of meat production, beef output totaled 23.1 billion pounds, a nine per cent gain from 1973. Veal output jumped 36 per cent to 486 million pounds, reflecting a big increase in calf slaughter.

The trend is continuing this year although at a somewhat lesser rate. During the first three months of 1975, the department said last week, beef production was more than 5.8 billion pounds, up seven per cent from January-March last year. Veal output was about doubled from the first quarter of 1974.

Kansas man hospitalized following gunshot wound

FALLS CITY, Neb. (AP)—A 19-year-old Axtell, Kan., man was listed in critical condition late Sunday in an Omaha hospital from a gunshot wound to the head.

He was identified as Marshall Moore Jr.

Police said he was wounded by a bullet that ricocheted off a tree when an officer shot a gun in the air as a warning to Moore to halt.

Police were searching for Moore after a high-speed chase of a car from Horton, Kan., to Falls City.

They said a youth eluded them in a stolen car and then took off on foot after the car crashed near a Falls City residential area.

The youth was identified by officers from material found in his billfold.

Police said Moore was driving a car reportedly stolen in Kingston, Mo., Saturday night and went through Horton at high speed, despite law officers being on the highway. Police Chief Richard Dietzler and a policeman took off in pursuit and radioed ahead to Hiawatha, Kan. where officers said the car passed through the city at high speed.

In Falls City, the car turned off the highway into a residential area and crashed when the driver failed to negotiate a curve.

On some auction markets,

the selling of animals by

"private treaty" before the sale begins is common practice. However, there are disadvantages to this practice. Often, the farmer is not knowledgeable as to the value of his animals. In this instance, a shrewd

trader may take advantage of the farmer and buy the livestock for less than its true value. If a farmer makes such a private treaty

he may be greatly disappointed when an hour or so later, he sees his animals sell at a much higher price than he received. Efforts should be made by auction operators to stop this sort of thing

because it results in unhappy auction patrons.

Small livestock producers are the backbone of the country auction market industry. Forty to fifty percent of the auction

volume is received from producers with less than fifty head of cattle. One cause of the development of auctions was that the small producers and the small decentralized packers need market facilities.

Twins 6, Royals 3

K.C. skid continues

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Twins do all right with a week off.

The Twins, who didn't play for six days last week because of poor weather, climaxed a weekend sweep of the Kansas City Royals with a 6-3 victory Sunday.

"We practiced enough despite the weather," said Minnesota Manager Frank Quilici. "And we got the performances."

Quilici was elated with the performance of 23-year-old rookie right hander Jim Hughes in Sunday's comeback victory over the Royals.

"He was great," said Quilici. "He was in trouble a couple of times late in the game, but I'm not going to be too smart and take the guy out when he hasn't allowed a run."

Hughes, who won his first major league game and evened his season record at 1-1, took over for starter Vic Albury in the third inning and pitched hitless ball for five innings. He allowed a pair of singles in each the eighth and ninth innings.

"We didn't exactly wear him out," said Kansas City's Harmon Killebrew, who belted his fifth home run of the season against Albury in the first inning. "I thought he really had good stuff."

Move mark to 15-6

Chicago Cubs continue pace

ST. LOUIS (AP)—"We're just trying to be recognized," asserted Jim Marshall, the manager of baseball's surprising Chicago Cubs.

And a member of the St. Louis Cardinals, whom the Cubs roughed up again Sunday, says he's willing to concede the point to Marshall's aggressive young team.

"A guy just asked me if the Cubs are real," mused Reggie Smith, whose five hits—including two solo homers—were wasted in an 8-6 Cardinals defeat.

"Well, right now they are," Smith declared. "They get a hit, they score a run and they win. They're playing with a lot of confidence."

The confidence of the Cubs, who have a 15-6 record, could not have suffered following the seventh inning of Sunday's game.

Down 4-2, they arose with the aid of three straight walks from Lynn McGlothen, 2-2, following Pete LaCock's leadoff single.

Jose Cardenal then drove a sacrifice fly to tie for Chicago, and Bill Madlock and Jerry Morales hit singles off reliever Mike Garman to score three more runs and cap a five-run rally.

"I think the biggest hit of the day was Morales'," remarked Marshall, whose club withstood the Smith homers and four Card doubles.

OU pushes Big 8 loop mark to 12-3

KANSAS CITY (AP)—Oklahoma, the Big Eight's baseball czar, is off this week after raising its conference mark to 12-3 over the weekend at the expense of Kansas.

The only conference games this week have second-place Iowa State hosting Colorado and Kansas State welcoming Kansas for three-game series Friday and Saturday. Iowa State, 10-7, continues to play for a wild-card berth in the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs later this month, but its chances were damaged when the Cyclones dropped two of their three games with Missouri over the weekend at Ames.

Oklahoma crushed Kansas, 7-1, 13-0, 9-3. The Sooners' pitching in Friday's doubleheader was brilliant—Bob Shirley and Breen Newcomer each tossing one-hitters and raising their records to 9-1, 8-0, respectively. KU's conference mark dropped to 4-11, lowering the Jayhawks into the conference basement, replacing Colorado.

Defending JuCo champs stay alive

ROLLA, Mo. (AP) — Meramec Community College's chances of repeating as the National Junior College Athletic Association baseball champion appeared dim Sunday in a regional finale.

Crowder JC of Neosho, Mo., commanded a 9-6 lead entering the bottom of the ninth inning and was only three outs from ousting the defending titlists.

But Meramec struck for four runs in quick succession to take a stunning 10-9 triumph and the Region 16 title. The Warriors, second-ranked in current NJCAC standings, advance to the Central district tourney beginning Thursday at Lamar, Colo.

Sunday's game was the deciding contest in the best of three series after the teams split a doubleheader Saturday. Meramec won the opener, 2-0.

Make-up contests in Liberty Park

A make-up doubleheader between Sedalia Smith-Cotton and Columbia Hickman has been scheduled for 5 p.m. this afternoon in Liberty Park Stadium.

The games were originally scheduled for April 25, but were rained out.

Sighting in on Twin killing

Kansas City Royals' second baseman Frank White keeps a close eye on his throw to first base as he completes a double play against the Minnesota Twins in the fourth inning of Sunday's game. Steve Brye's attempt to take

White out of the play was too late. White managed to get his throw off to first and double up Bob Darwin. The Twins spoiled Harmon Killebrew Day by defeating the Royals, 6-3. (AP Wirephoto)

Killebrew celebrates his day with a 'bang'

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Harmon Killebrew, the most popular player in Minnesota Twins' history, had a big day Sunday...part of it at the expense of his old club.

Killebrew, who joined the Kansas City Royals this winter after being released by the Minnesota club, watched his No. 3 jersey retired by the Twins in a pregame ceremony and moments later boomed a home run against his former teammates.

"I really appreciate that Minnesota wanted to retire my uniform," said Killebrew. "It felt a little strange being in another uniform in the Twins' ball park, but it was a very nice gesture."

Killebrew received a standing ovation moments later when he slammed the first pitch to him from Minnesota's Vic Albury 380-feet into the left field bleachers to boost the Royals into a 3-0 advantage.

"As it turned out, it didn't mean much losing the game," remarked Killebrew. "But it certainly was a significant homer."

It was Killebrew's 564th career home run and fifth of the season leaving him one behind American League leader Willie Horton of Detroit.

"I don't know whether I can stay with the leaders at this stage of my career or not," said Killebrew. "It really doesn't mean that much after leading the league in home runs several times. I just want to help Kansas City any way I can."

"I could have told you he'd rise to the occasion," said Twins' catcher Phil Roof. "He's that kind of a person. He's always been able to come up with a big hit on a special day or when the club needs it."

Minnesota Manager Frank Quilici said he enjoyed Killebrew's home run as a fan, but not particularly as a manager.

"We won, so it didn't really hurt us, but at the time I didn't really like it," said Quilici.

Flyers take 3-0 lead

Philadelphia adds to shutout string

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP)—It's supposed to be difficult to win National Hockey League playoff games. The checking is closer, the pressure is more intense and the fear of making a mistake shadows every player whether he's playing, eating or trying to sleep.

It is, therefore, something of a shock to watch the Philadelphia Flyers. They have ignored the tension, shrugged off the temporary loss of their top goalie and all but breezed to victory in their seven playoff games this season.

The most recent triumph was Sunday's 1-0 whitewash over the New York Islanders in the third game of their Stanley Cup semifinal series. An unquivering Philadelphia defense allowed New York just 14 shots on goal, permitting netminder Bernie Parent to yawn through his third shutout of the playoffs and Philadelphia's fourth in the seven post-season games they've played.

The key, according to Coach Fred Shero, is discipline—not an easy thing to instill in a player. And that discipline, Shero said, showed itself most in the closing eight minutes of the game after right wing Reggie Leach scored Philadelphia's goal on a backhand 30 seconds into the third period.

Parent had scares from New York forwards Billy Harris, Bob Nystrom and Jude Drouin, but otherwise had an easy time in helping the Flyers take a 3-0 lead in the best-of-seven series going into Wednesday night's fourth contest here. It was Philadelphia's eighth consecutive playoff victory and extended to 21 games (including regular season) the Flyers' unbeaten streak.

'Kid Line' playing big part for Houston Aeros

HOUSTON (AP) — When Houston Aeros Coach Bill Dineen sends the kids out to play, the opposition doesn't relax.

That's because the Aeros' fourth line—they call it their "Kid Line"—plays just as big a part in Houston's success as the other three veteran lines.

Houston's 6-2 victory over Quebec Saturday night in the first game of the World Hockey Association World Cup series was a good example of the Kid Line's contribution.

Terry Ruskowski, the rookie line's center, scored one of four Houston goals in a runaway first period and right wing Don Larway scored another for Houston in the second period.

"Our young guys are doing such an excellent job," said veteran Gordon Labossiere, who scored two goals in Saturday's victory.

Part of Houston's success in this year's WHA playoffs has been their rocket fast starts in each series. Houston pounced on both Cleveland and San Diego in their first two rounds and they did the same thing to Quebec Saturday.

Labossiere, Larry Lund, Gordie Howe and Ruskowski scored in the first period and Larway added his second period goal for a 5-0 Houston lead before the Nordiques scored.

The series resumes here Tuesday night.

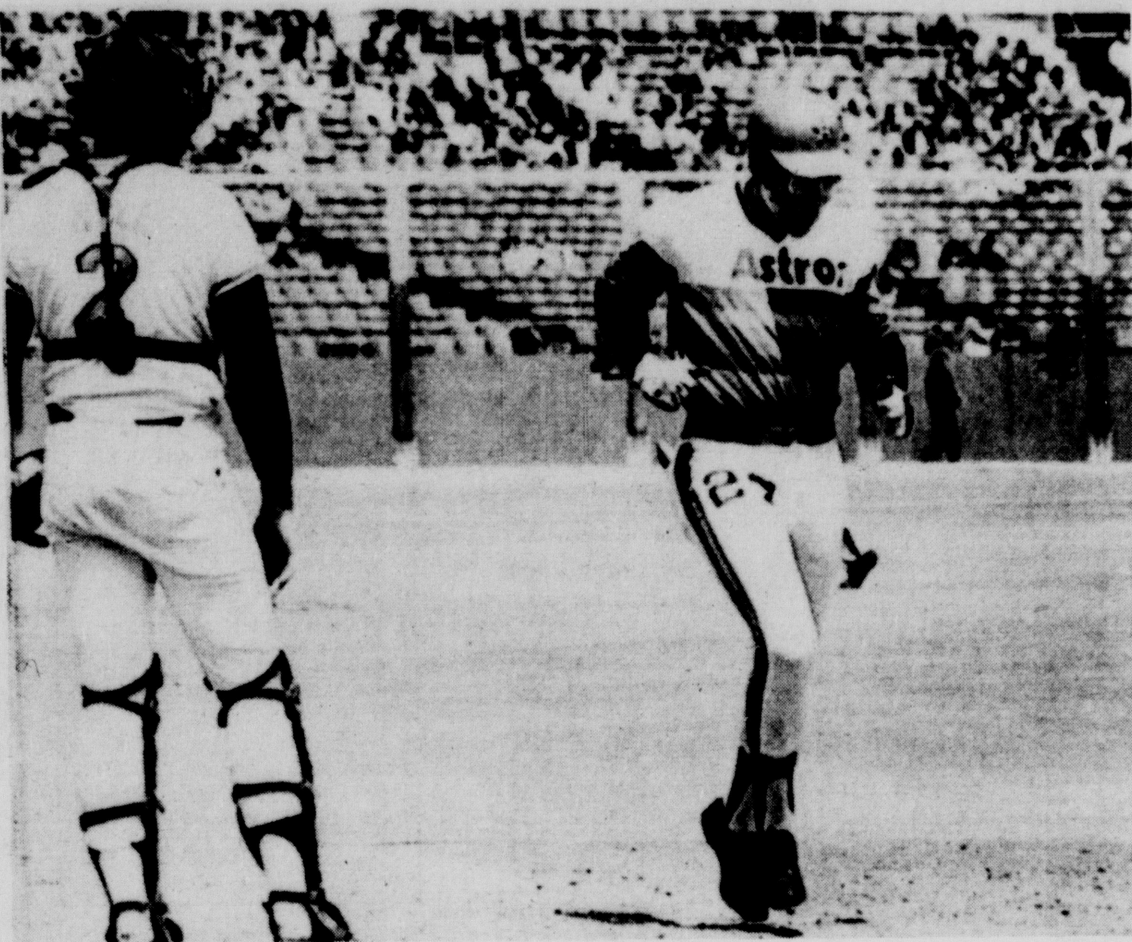

Parsons golfers win tournament

PARSONS, Kan. (AP) — The first Katy-Parsons Two-Man Low-Ball Invitational Golf Tournament has been won by a couple of hometowners, Stan Brewer and Nick LaForge.

They completed an 11-under par 133 over 36 holes Sunday.

Dave Dennis and Odie Wilson took second after a showdown with Adin Leach and Craig Palmer. Both teams, from Independence, Kan., had tied at 137.

Fifty-two teams from Missouri, Kansas and Oklahoma participated.

Boston Celtics seek to improve shooting

BOSTON (AP) — The defending champion Boston Celtics, still down by one game in their National Basketball Association playoff with the Washington Bullets, are struggling to regain their shooting form.

"We're due to break out," Boston captain John Havlicek said after the Celtics hit on just 39 per cent of their field goal attempts Saturday in a 101-90 victory over the Bullets. "We couldn't shoot any worse than we have so far in this series."

Veteran forward Paul Silas, who contributed 10 points while grabbing 25 rebounds as the Celtics remained alive in the best-of-seven Eastern Conference final, tried to explain the shooting.

"When you have to make the shots, it's not the same," Silas said. "If you're up by 13, the rim looks as big as the ocean. But if you're down, it can look very small."

Despite the third game victory after two losses, Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn was concerned with the team's over-all shooting.

"It could have been a 30-point game," Heinsohn said. "We were very effective on defense and got the second shots on the offensive boards. However, we still didn't shoot well and that bothers me."

Havlicek, Dave Cowens and Jo Jo White led Boston scorers in the third game, but none hit on 50 per cent of his shots.

Havlicek connected on nine of 20 while scoring 26 points. Cowens hit on 10 of 27, finishing with 24 points. White had 21 points, but managed to hit on just nine of 25 field goal attempts.

The Celtics threw up a tight pressing defense to pull away from Washington in the third quarter. The Bullets scored just 10 points in the third period and Boston was home free with a 14-point lead heading into the final quarter.

While hoping to regain their shooting eyes, the Celtics are expected to continue the same defensive tactics in the fourth game at Landover, Md. The fifth game is scheduled for Boston Garden Friday night.

Warriors look for better fortunes on home court

CHICAGO (AP) — There's no place like home, and the Golden State Warriors are glad to be there this week.

The Warriors trail 2-1 in their National Basketball Association Western Conference final playoff series with the Chicago Bulls, who Sunday won their second in a row at the Chicago Stadium with a 108-101 triumph.

Now the Warriors, who started fast but were pinned on the ropes the entire second half by the sharp-shooting of Chicago's Norm Van Lier, have Tuesday and Thursday night contests on their own court to recoup in the best-of-seven series.

"We knew there was a possibility of losing both our games here," said Warrior Coach Al Attles, "and now the pressure is on us."

The Warriors won the series opener at Oakland 107-89 and very nearly took the second game here Wednesday night before the Bulls snatched it 90-89 on Tom Boerwinkle's field goal in the last two seconds.

But there was nothing flimsy about Chicago's victory in Sunday's nationally televised game in which Van Lier pumped in 35 points and the Bulls were in control after Golden State suddenly slumped to a 13-point second quarter.

Sedalia Implement splits doubleheader

Marshall Hamm's and Sedalia Implement split a men's softball doubleheader Sunday.

Henry Hunter picked up the win in Hamm's 11-4 win in the opener. Gerald Abney was the loser.

In the second game, Sedalia Implement pulled out a 6-5 win behind Archie Shireman.

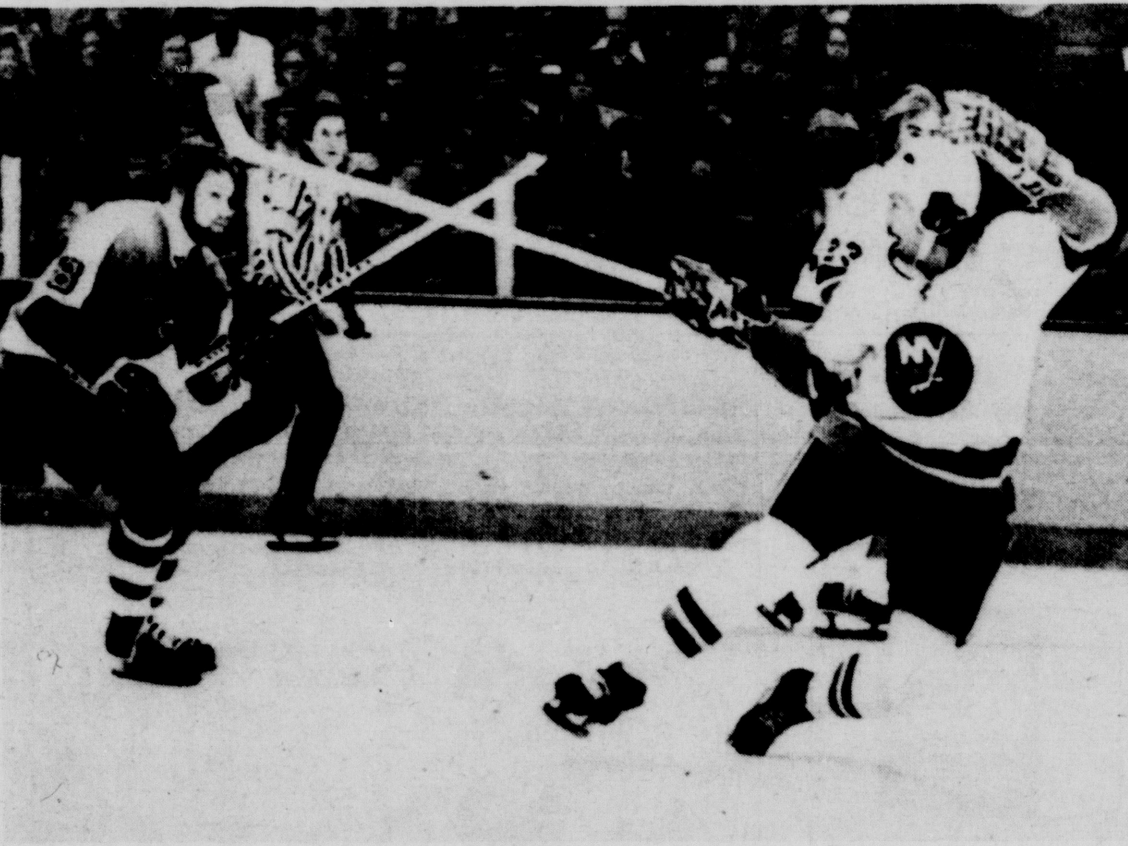

George Wilhite was charged with the loss.

It was a game in which the guard tandems of both teams took the play away from their high-scoring star forwards, Chicago's Bob Love and Golden State's Rick Barry.

While Love was held to 19 points, Van Lier and guard running mate Jerry Sloan combined for 40 points.

Barry struggled for a 21-point effort, but the Warrior guards clicked for 46 with Butch Beard hitting for 28 and Charlie Johnson for 18.

The Bulls took command early in the third quarter when Van Lier and Sloan scored six successive points for a 64-57 lead and Golden State continued to falter for a 10-point deficit, 81-71, entering the final quarter.

Touche!

Hockey is the name of the game, but here it looks like a fencing duel between Philadelphia's Dave Schultz (left) and New York Islanders' Dave Lewis during Sunday's Stanley Cup semifinal game in New York. The Flyers won the contest, 1-0, giving Philadelphia a 3-0 lead in their best-of-seven playoff series. (AP Wirephoto)

Sabres look for more scoring

BUFFALO (AP) — Buffalo Coach Floyd Smith offered a simple remedy Sunday for his club's recent performance against the Montreal Canadiens in their National Hockey League Stanley Cup semifinal series.

"We've got to score more goals," Smith said. "The only difference is that Montreal has scored more than us in the last two games."

Buffalo won the first two games on its own ice, 6-5 in overtime and 4-2. But in Montreal for Game 3, the Sabres looked like they forgot where the net was as the Canadiens scored an easy 7-0 victory. Then, on Saturday, despite Smith's promise that things would change, Montreal toyed with the young Sabres and scored an impressive 8-2 victory.

Montreal has come through on 10 of 22 power play chances while Buffalo is one for 18. Eight of the Canadiens' power play goals came in the last two games when the Sabres lost their composure and were hit with numerous penalties.

The teams battle in Game 5 of their best-of-seven series Tuesday night in Buffalo.

Field thins down

3-year-olds look to Preakness

LOUISVILLE (AP) — Three and possibly four of the starters in the 101st Kentucky Derby are headed for the May 17 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico, where as many as seven new challengers await them in the second jewel of thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

Of course, Derby winner Foolish Pleasure will try the next step toward a Triple, but his victory on Saturday already "carries a horse a long way down the road," trainer LeRoy Jolley said Sunday.

Of the three Triple Crown races, "the Belmont may be most important to some leaders" in the thoroughbred industry, "but the Derby is always such a hard-fought race," Jolley said.

"Let's face it—there's always a big field in the Derby, but by the time we get to the Belmont (June 7) you're most often down to just four or five," he added.

Traveling to Baltimore for the Preakness with Foolish Pleasure will be Frank McMahon's Diabolo, who finished third in the Derby, and Dr. Anthony Leggio's Bold Chapeau, who finished eighth.

Another possible traveler from Churchill Downs to Pimlico is Arthur A. Seeligs Jr.'s Avatar, the runner-up to Foolish Pleasure in the Derby. Trainer Tommy Doyle would like to pass the Preakness, but the owner wants Avatar to run.

Awaiting the Derby starters in Baltimore is Cynthia Phipps' Singh, tabbed as an outstanding threat in the Derby until he suffered a torn ligament in his right hind leg while winning his division of the Gotham Stakes April 5.

Singh won two of seven races last year and opened the current campaign by winning three stakes without a loss before his injury.

Also in Baltimore are William S. Farish III's Winter Fox, winner of a division of the Survivor; Mrs. Ben Cohen's Con Man, hero of the Prince Georges and Challedon; Robert Horton's Gallant Bow, who won three stakes in a row to start this season; E.P. Taylor's Dancing Champ and Bayerd Sharp's North of the Law.

Other possible Preakness starters include J.M. Roebeling's Laramie Trail and W. Preston Gilbride's Greek Answer, who has been a nemesis to Triple Crown candidates at both Oaklawn Park and Churchill Downs this season.

Willie Stargell of the Pittsburgh Pirates had a slugging average of .646 for 1973.

Crampton captures Houston Open title

HOUSTON (AP) — Bruce Crampton came to Houston hoping—not too optimistically—to make the cut for the last two rounds. Now he goes home to Dallas seeking—very enthusiastically—two victories in a row.

"There is no substitute for victory," the veteran Crampton said Sunday after he'd scored by two strokes over challenging Dr. Gil Morgan, a far-sighted eye doctor who decided to take up golf instead of fitting glasses after receiving his doctorate from the Southern College of Optometry.

Crampton, an Australian native now living in Dallas, made the cut comfortably on Friday, took the lead from struggling Lee Trevino the next day and scored by two strokes Sunday with a last-round 69 and a 273 total, 15-under-par on the Woodlands Country Club course, a 6,929-yard layout that was hacked out of a South Texas pine woods less than a year ago.

"I knew I was close," Morgan said. "I knew I had to make some more birdies, but I just couldn't get them."

He finished with a 70 and second alone—by far the best finish of his brief career—with a 275 total. Joe Inman, 67-276, and John Schroeder, 71-278, were next with Tom Kite, Larry Nelson, Eddie Pearce and 47-year-old Lionel Hebert grouped at 279. Kite had a 68 in the hot, humid weather, Hebert 69, Nelson 70 and Pearce 71.

Score of 96 wins SCC tournament

First place in the Sedalia Country Club's couples Hollywood tourney Sunday went to the foursome of H. L. Keens, Patty Simmons and Bill and Hazel Brown. They teamed up for a 96.

Finishing three strokes back in second were Jess and Grace Walthall and Jim and LaVonne Labahn.

In the past 10 years both Tony Oliva and Rod Carew have won three American League batting titles with the Minnesota Twins.

Evidence of economic upturn

NEW YORK (AP) — The already widespread belief that an economic upturn is likely to take place in the second half of the year was reinforced during the past week.

Perhaps the most important announcement of all came from Arthur Burns, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who said he would seek a 5 to 7.5 per cent growth in the money supply.

Many Americans suspect that Burns is probably still more concerned about the dangers of inflation than of recession. But Burns dispelled that notion somewhat.

The money supply goal should be sufficient, he said, "to finance a vigorous economic recovery."

It will be considerably more than the rate that prevailed over the past year. In all of 1974 the rate was only 4.7 per cent; in the first quarter of this year it was 3.5 per cent.

Many citizens as well as economists and congressmen have criticized the money supply rate as too low to permit vigorous recovery. In fact, they maintain the low rate has worsened the recession.

Alan Greenspan, chairman of the President's Council of Economic Advisers, remained just as hesitant and cautious as ever, but the mere fact that he again stated a belief that recovery was coming gave encouragement.

"The evidence is still tentative," he said, "but it tends to support the view that the economy will stabilize to a very large degree during the second quarter of the year."

The treasury Department added another view that was widely interpreted as being bullish. It would need $5 billion less in the credit markets, it said, because tax revenues were turning out higher than anticipated.

This news took a lot of pressure off the credit markets, which finance not only the big federal deficit but the expansion plans of private industry. That pressure was expected to drive interest rates back up.

At 848.48, the Dow Jones Industrial Average has now recovered all but about 2 of the 230 points lost during the collapse of prices in 1974.

Nothing is certain in economics or stocks, however, and a lot of people remain nervous about the immediate future. The chief worries appear to be these:

—Few economists foresee the jobless rate coming down very fast. While many agree that the 8.9 per cent rate is probably close to the peak, they fear that it might stay in that vicinity for several months.

—Arthur Burns isn't the only one fearful of a return of the boom-bust cycle. Inflation is by no means licked yet.

—While the stock market is said to be a good forecaster because it represents the outlook of the public, the public doesn't seem to be aware of it. Most of the heavy trading is by institutions, by professionals, rather than by the general public.

NOTICE OF PLUMBERS EXAMINATION

Ann Landers

Food coloring spoils appetite

Dear Ann Landers: I married a wonderful gal, a psychology major who also happens to be a fantastic cook. Here's the problem.

Immediately after our honeymoon Sally began to prepare some very fancy dinners — exotic dishes I had never heard of before. When she served me mashed potatoes colored blue I told her to please get back to the simple stuff because food with strange coloring kills my appetite.

Sally insists I have a hangup and I must get rid of it. So now I'm getting pink milk, purple cottage cheese and polka-dot cauliflower, along with the blue potatoes.

Sally reads your column and your word is law in our house. Will you tell her artificially-colored food has nothing to do with emotional problems and to please stop trying to break me of a "hangup." This letter is not from Yale (I went to Brown eight years ago.) It's no gag, it's a for-real problem and I'd appreciate your help. — Hungry Herbie.

Dear Herbie: This is for Sally: It may on the odd-fay coloring-kay, kiddo. Herbie doesn't need to conquer the "hangup." It's a normal reaction. In fact, the thought of polka-dot cauliflower nauseates me and I can eat anything.

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 24-year-old girl with a terrible case of acne. I was asking some of the girls at work what to do about it. The salves and soaps I've been using don't do any good.

One girl asked me if I was a virgin. When I said, "Yes," she replied, "Your skin will clear up when you have sexual relations." I then discussed this with a couple other girls and they agreed with her.

What about it, Ann? True or false? — Need To Know In Long Island

Dear Need: Is that old yarn still kicking around? Usually it's the boys who promote the garbage, but apparently some of the girls believe it, too. (Maybe someone sold THEM a bill of goods.)

There's no truth to it. If there were, all virgins would have skin problems and the promiscuous girls would have the most beautiful complexions. You know very well that such is not the case. Quit fooling around with salves and soaps and go to a dermatologist. Acne CAN be eliminated but you should be under the care and observation of a skin specialist.

Dear Ann Landers: Settle a family argument, please. My husband's brother was divorced from his wife. Is she still our sister-in-law? If so, does this mean if he marries three more times we could end up with four sisters-in-law on account of this nut?

You wouldn't believe the flap this has caused in our family. Hurry your answer. — Who's Who?

Dear Who: When your brother and his wife untied the knot legally, his wife became your FORMER sister-in-law. She was related only by marriage. When the marriage was terminated, she lost her "title."

No matter how often your brother marries he can give you only one set of in-laws at a time.

Dear Ann Landers: My girlfriend used to run her life according to the horoscope in the paper. She got into trouble a few times because she relied too much on the horoscope. Now she is debating between a mind-reader in Beverly Hills and a palmist in Boyle Heights. Which would you recommend? — Joe

Dear Joe: I have no faith in either, but if she MUST choose, she's better off with the palmist. It will probably cost her less and besides, I'm sure she has a palm.

Job outlook bleak for graduates

Caballeros saddle club sponsors show

By LEE LINDER

Associated Press Writer

Job prospects for this spring's newest crop of college graduates are dismal. Desperate students are queuing up for cracks at whatever is available, a campus phenomenon that is making college placement officials work harder and longer.

Paul Ginsburg, dean of students at the University of Wisconsin, says it's not unusual for 70 students to be waiting in line each day to discuss job possibilities.

Charles Sunberg, placement director at UCLA, says, "I really don't know what adjective to use to describe the situation. Bad? Worse? It's the worst I've seen in many years."

Only for engineers, accountants and mathematics and science teachers is the employment outlook bright. But even in these areas, the number of job choices is considerably fewer than earlier anticipated.

The College Placement Council, which is headquartered in Bethlehem, Pa., and compiles job offers received by 156 colleges and universities around the nation, says:

"Slim pickings for just about everybody but engineering candidates, and possibly accounting majors. Now, midway through the season, cutbacks appear to have hit engineering as well."

Doug Nichols, placement director at Shippensburg, Pa., State College, says, "The cliché that a college education guarantees you a job is no longer true."

Jerry Richardson, assistant director of career planning at Ohio's Bowling Green State University, blames the recession for the reduction in campus recruiting.

"A lot of companies are not quite sure what the economic picture is and are interviewing a little later than they used to,"

Richardson says. "A lot of them aren't going to make any offers until July."

Some college seniors, faced with the dwindling job market further glutted by experienced laid-off workers, are making commitments to seek graduate and doctorate degrees.

A placement spokesman for Georgia Southern College says "many graduates try to expand with a masters degree to give themselves more saleability."

But UCLA's Sundberg sharply disagrees.

"Going to graduate school just because you can't find a job is the wrong thing to do," he said. "That's not why a person should continue his education."

Richardson also claims continuing school just compounds the problem.

"If you can't get a job with a bachelor's degree, you can't get a job with a second degree, because many companies can't afford that second degree," Richardson says.

He says that liberal arts grads, more than anyone else, are going to have great job hunting difficulties unless they have career goals and change tactics.

Nichols tells students they've got to do a lot more than ever before — be more mobile, more flexible and able to identify the alternatives.

"It is especially difficult for those who are not geographically mobile," says Nancy Gilpin, of the career services office in Philadelphia's Temple University. "If you are able to go to the southern part of the United States, or to some rural areas in other parts of the country, your chances are a little better. For teachers, the East Coast and the West Coast are saturated."

Nichols says, "We're encouraging people to prepare a very thorough search. It's going to take more time and effort to get a good job."

CALIFORNIA — The Caballeros Junior Saddle Club here will sponsor a spring show beginning at noon Saturday, including 20 classes ranging from western pleasure to racing.

Mrs. Keith McKee is the chairman of the show and said that all proceeds will go toward encouragement and direction of youth in this area. Additional information about the show may be obtained by calling 796-3552.

When a recipe calls for "thin strips of onion," peel the onion and quarter it; slice each quarter lengthwise into thin strips.

Study blasts enforcement of job discrimination laws

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional investigators are criticizing the government for lax enforcement of rules requiring federal contractors to end job discrimination against blacks and women.

In a report Sunday, the General Accounting Office said it found a pattern of "almost non-existence of enforcement actions." It said the pattern could lead contractors to believe that "the compliance agencies do not intend to enforce" regulations against discrimination.

One-fifth of the "affirmative action" hiring plans approved by the Pentagon for its contractors do not meet federal guidelines, the GAO said.

Seventy per cent of the plans approved by the General Services Administration, the government's housekeeping agency, were deficient and did not have sufficient safeguards to promote job equality, the GAO added.

"As a result of these failures, the minorities who are supposed to be assisted by federal anti-discrimination efforts are understandably frustrated," said Rep. Richard Bolling, D-Mo., fiscal-policy subcommittee chairman of the Joint Economic Committee.

Bolling said the first responsibility for the plans lies with the government.

GAO investigators said that 10 years after an executive order banned discrimination by federal contractors, the Labor Department still does not have a standard for evaluating progress in employment of minorities.

The Labor Department is supposed to require each contractor with 50 or more employees and a contract above $50,000 to prepare an affirmative-action plan "to achieve prompt and full utilization of minorities and women at all levels and in all segments of the ... work force where deficiencies exist," the GAO said.

To force compliance, the department can cancel contracts.
